Daughtry played their first ever show in Northern Ireland in Limelight 1, Belfast on Friday 28th March 2014. Cynics will always look for grounds to criticise and malign but the success of the band can't be disputed. And neither can the strength of the band's performance nor the extent to which the crowd enjoyed the show in Belfast. I don't write gig reviews simply because those who were there to see the band will know what they thought about it, but I'm sure the reviews and thoughts of others will appear. Videos can never capture the full impact of a performance but here are a few of Daughtry and of supporting band Charming Liars.
